newsletter

Dear members and friends of the Fellowship,

To compose “a letter from the president” about the Artists’ Fellowship is not difficult if it is a long letter. Every topic involving its 158 years conjures up volumes. Its founding and slow transformation into the Artists’ Fellowship, Inc. is an epic tale. The biographies of its distinguished members would fill a Who’s Who of Art. That it has been around for so long and is known by so few, and that, it has at the same time survived and even thrived, is an amazing history in itself.

A short letter is another matter. Looking for a starting point, I went to our constitution and re-read these carefully worded lines:

“The purposes of the Fellowship are to voluntarily and actively aid artists and their dependent families in the event of sickness, distress and bereavement, by financial contributions, as the Trustees may deem proper, such aid not to be limited to members of the Fellowship and to provide a bond of mutual aid, welfare and fellowship among artists. The term “artist” as used throughout this constitution means a person engaged in the creation of any of the fine arts.”

This is a concise description of who, what, why and how it works to this day. A dedicated membership exists that has always known how important the creative life is to our society and how necessary it is to nurture this “bond of mutual aid, welfare and fellowship among artists.”

Our endowment has had the good fortune of years of expert stewardship with prudent investment resulting in steady growth and a constant flow of aid. Selfless volunteers continue to step up to serve on our board. Members and friends have generously contributed time and finances to this continuum with bequests being an important part of this funding for the future. The artists we help are still defined by that democratic phrase: “a person engaged in the creation of any of the fine arts.” I particularly like the “any of the fine arts” part.

We are all involved with the artistic community. We know well the ups and downs of this life and that it can be as fragile as smoke. The best part of being a member of the Fellowship is the hope that you can offer when you hear an artist needs help.

I sincerely thank all who are involved with this organization. I thank you for what you have done and for what you will do. Know that we are a small charity with a large impact. Our work is important.

In true fellowship,

Charles Yoder, President

NEW YORK FOUNDATION FOR THE ARTS GARI MELCHERS MEMORIAL MEDAL

It is with great pleasure that the Artists' Fellowship presents the Gari Melchers Memorial Medal to the New York Foundation for the Arts. This award is given annually to “a person or an organization that has materially furthered the interest of the profession of the fine arts.”

Independently organized in 1971, NYFA continues its mission to empower artists at critical stages of their creative lives. Its all-inclusive policy supports all of the arts and has expanded from New York State to the entire country and soon to the international arts community. The Foundation has several distinct programs organized to serve its mission. Here are brief descriptions of some of them:

- The Fiscal Sponsorship provides artists and arts organizations its tax-exempt status for their fundraising efforts, enabling them to receive tax-deductible donations with free access to NYFA's services and resources.
- NYFA Classifieds is one of the best-known sources for job offerings in the arts.
- NYFA Source is the nation's largest online arts database, with over 11,500 resources and opportunities for artists, it is continually updated by Source Hotline.
- NYFA Learning provides workshops, panels, individual consultations and much more to assist artists in developing and maintaining their art businesses.
- The Immigrant Artist Program helps immigrants working in the Metropolitan area and will soon serve immigrants in Newark, Detroit, San Antonio and Oakland. Their Programs in Asia partner with residency exchanges and workshops assisting artists, curators and arts administrators in the expanding Asian art world.
- Awards and Grants provide unrestricted funds to individual artists. These are administered by NYFA with support from the New York State Council of the Arts, the governor and state legislature.

Having spent our lives in the artistic community, we have lived through periodic Draconian cuts to the arts. We have seen arts programs have their funding slashed or ended. We have endured government disregard for the value of the arts, artists' lives and in the cultural value of the arts. Once more we find ourselves in an atmosphere of uncertainty. It is in times like these, that the New York Foundation for the Arts becomes even more necessary as it continues to reach out with support to all expressions of creativity. Directing and developing an organization such as this takes dedication and vision. This is ably provided by NYFA's Chair Dr. Judith Brodsky and Executive Director Michael Royce. The Fellowship commends them for their steadfast involvement and honor the New York Foundation for the Arts for its commitment to our shared heartfelt belief that art is an absolute necessity in every human's life.

SIGMUND ABELES BENJAMIN WEST CLINEDINST MEMORIAL MEDAL

This year the Artists' Fellowship is honoring Sigmund Abeles with the Benjamin West Clinedinst Memorial Medal, presented each year to an individual "for the achievement of exceptional artistic merit"—words that seem to perfectly describe Mr. Abeles.

"My art is all about people," says Mr. Abeles. His drawings, paintings, sculptures, pastels and prints chronicle his life and the lives of the people and animals around him. Narrative is obvious in everything he does. The human condition is portrayed in all its public and private forms: domestic bliss and strife, war protests and civil rights. All are material for his visual stories.

"Drawing is the core of all my art," he has said. His work focuses on the cycle of life, conveyed through the expressions and psychologies of the human figure. Drawing has maintained its dominance throughout the arc of his life's work. "Do five drawings a day for five years and you can call yourself an artist," he was once told. After a 63-year career, there is no doubt.

Born in New York City in 1934, Mr. Abeles was raised in South Carolina, educated at the University of South Carolina and then at the Art Students League and Columbia University. Two summers at the Skowhegan School served as the bridge from student to professional artist.

For 27 years he taught drawing and printmaking at the University of New Hampshire, where he is now Professor Emeritus. He is a Hall of Fame honoree of the Pastel Society of America, holds an Honorary Doctorate of Arts at Coastal Carolina University and has been elected to the National Academy of Design. Today Mr. Abeles works full time in his New York City and upstate studios and teaches master classes at the Art Students League.

His work has been collected widely and can be seen in the British Museum, Brookgreen Gardens, Chicago Art Institute, Fogg Museum, the Museum of Modern Art, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston and the Whitney Museum. He has had solo exhibitions at the Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown, OH; the McKissick Museum in Columbia, SC; The Old Print Shop and the Culture Center (NYC); the Visual Arts Gallery at SUNY Adirondack; the Kalamazoo Institute of Arts and the Lapham Gallery in Glens Falls, NY. Solo and group exhibitions have toured all over the United States, Europe and Israel.

In 2012, he was featured as an etcher in Manfred Kirchheimer's full length documentary Art is... The Permanent Revolution, which focused on printmaking methods and the history of the art of protest in prints.

This highly respected artist is a longtime member of the Artists' Fellowship and, as such, shares in its mission of compassion and aid to the arts community. Combine these with his artistic merit and long career, and you have in Sigmund Abeles an ideal recipient of the Benjamin West Clinedinst Memorial Medal.

HONORING JANET FISH AND THE ROBERT RAUSCHENBERG FOUNDATION

AF President, 2012-2016

The Annual Awards Dinner took place on September 28, 2016 at the Manhattan Penthouse in New York City. After a lively cocktail hour where members and guests enjoyed the camaraderie overlooking Manhattan, the program opened with the Fellowship’s Director Terry Brown, who shared some history that included two prominent past supporters of the Fellowship, William Merritt Chase and Louis Comfort Tiffany, when the organization began as the Helpful Society 157 years ago. President Wende Caporale-Greene welcomed numerous guests including the honorees, artist Janet Fish and Chris Rauschenberg, son of Robert Rauschenberg, from the Robert Rauschenberg Foundation, as well as Heidi Lange and Andrea Cerbie from DC Moore Gallery. The audience included many prominent guests including past honorees Pam Singleton, Annette Blaugrund, Daniel Greene, Richard Haas, Morton Kaish, Everett Raymond Kinstler and Philip Pearlstein, who taught Janet Fish at Yale. Also in attendance were past president of the Fellowship, Marc Mellon and former trustee Franklin Feldman. President Caporale-Greene thanked the entire board of the Fellowship, comprised of artists and lay members devoted to the arts, for their time, energy and compassion, as well as the supporting staff, Director Terry Brown and administrator Silvia Franco, for their numerous efforts for the Fellowship. The evening was made further memorable with the attendance of Alison Pena and Joyce Pena, wife and mother respectively of our beloved colleague, David Pena, who sadly passed away earlier in September after having served as a devoted trustee of the Fellowship for over 17 years.

The evening’s festivities began with the presentation of the Benjamin West Clinedinst Memorial Medal to Janet Fish. Artist Robert Kushner eloquently spoke about how he had “known Fish’s work forever” and that they have been colleagues at DC Moore Gallery since the 1990’s. They have since then become good friends and Kushner’s admiration of Janet Fish has “grown exponentially.” Speaking about her work, Kushner called Fish “one of the finest colorists painting today.” He described her work as “all things shining, reflective, transparent” and commended her for her astounding array of subject matter. Kushner characterized her florals as “unique saturated hues of each full-blown flower and there’s always the presence of light—the reflection—the radiance.” Noting that Fish arrived at Yale in the 1960’s, Kushner acknowledged that she “diverged radically from her classmates” and instead seemed to ask herself, “What is the full spectrum of what paint can mimic?” In addition to her brilliance as an artist, for many years, Janet Fish, an elected member of the National Academy, has been a supporter of young artists through the Marie Walsh Sharpe Foundation, which gives studio space to artists, and as a governor of the Skowhegan School. Kushner described Fish as a “courageous role model—a woman painter who broke through the male-dominated walls of academia and did it on her own terms.” When President Wende Caporale-Greene presented the Benjamin West Clinedinst Medal to Janet Fish, she was clearly moved and was overwhelmed as she thanked the audience for the profound honor.

Next on the program was the presentation of the Gari Melchers Memorial Medal to the Robert Rauschenberg Foundation, accepted by Chris Rauschenberg, son of the artist and President of RRF. From the Rauschenberg Foundation’s oral history project, Senior Curator David White quoted Chris Rauschenberg as saying “a photographer is not operating from a remove.” White continued by explaining that Chris was a terrific photographer and a very special human being who embodied passion, integrity, enthusiasm and a great sense of humor in his life and work. It was after Robert’s death that Chris was asked and later became CEO and President of the RRF. Accepting the award from President Wende Caporale-Greene, Chris found it “moving and wonderful” and hoped that the RRF would have the longevity and enthusiasm of the Fellowship to continue to help artists. Chris spoke about his father’s earlier years when he “didn’t have a nickel to his name” and scrounged to keep making his art. Chris continued by noting that when Rauschenberg began to make money, he also began to share it with other artists who needed it.

The artist felt that art is something we are all doing together and that artists care about one another. Chris spoke of the three pronged efforts of RRF and its efforts to support philanthropic organizations, promote artist residency opportunities and disseminate Rauschenberg’s work into the world. To the surprise of the foundation, Chris acknowledged that the artist residency has become the “main legacy path”; over 200 artists have worked in Rauschenberg’s studio where they have developed an appreciation for the artist’s collaborative spirit and love of the environment, particularly on Captiva Island in Florida.

According to Chris, these artists then go out into the world, excited, open and carrying on the legacy by spreading this collaborative spirit fostered by Rauschenberg. Chris stated that Rauschenberg continues to “blow their minds, move their hearts and fill them with artistic energy and joy.” Chris was deeply honored and pleased to have an inspirational organization like the Fellowship recognize the work that they are doing at the Rauschenberg Foundation. AF 2016 Annual Awards Dinner continued from p.7

RRF. Charlie was still in school when he met Rauschenberg and recalls that the time he spent as his assistant was the equivalent of a Master's program. He indicated that he had worked for Bob for 12 years, traveling extensively installing shows for the artist, and had known him for 40 years. Finally, Charlie acknowledged that Bob's spirit remains alive through the work of the Rauschenberg Foundation.

After a sumptuous meal, dessert and coffee was served while the glitter of Manhattan lights glowed within the dining room amid laughter and conversation. Emcee Terry Brown closed the evening encouraging the audience to return next year and to revisit during upcoming Fellowship events.

SAVE THE DATE!
AF 158th Annual Awards Dinner
MONDAY, OCTOBER 23, 2017
National Arts Club • 15 Gramercy Park South
New York, NY 10003

Our Artists' Fellowship Annual Awards Dinner will again feature a silent auction of the work of a selected group of renowned artists. Invitations are currently available; please notify us if you need additional invites. Anyone interested in supporting the Fellowship is welcome, regardless of their membership status. We look forward to seeing you and celebrating our 158th year of helping artists!
